This is One of the Monuments of Which Richmond is Justly Proud-Sketch of What the Institution is Doing.

Richmond's charities are among her proudest monuments, and in all the several institutions meeting special needs and working among special classes none interferes with or occupies the field of the City Mission.

This charity is the oldest in the city, and works on very safe and practical lines.

It deals with the most abject poverty and is the friend of the people who are the poorest of the poor. Its objects address themselves at once to the favorable consideration of every humane mind. The material upon which it works is, as a rule, beyond the care of Church and other charitable societies. In fact, none are too low to forfeit its watchful care. With the exception of a small appro-priation by the city, the Mission is sup-ported entirely by voluntary contributions, and while the needs of the Mission are steadily growing, their resources are

Should you desire to do that good which brings its richest reward in the knowledge that human suffering has been relieved, then follow this little sketch. The City Mission was established fifteen years ago, taking the place of the old Benevolent Association. It was started by five ladies, with the late Mrs. Rebecca Patton at its head.

It first established a soup-house on Franklin street just below the Exchange Hotel. Gradually its influence spread, and when its purposes became well known charitable people came forward and contributed regularly to the cause. The city authorities, recognizing the good it was doing, made an annual aprepriation towards its work, and now receive $200 and 1,000 loads of gas coke each year from that source. Mrs. A. Y. Stokes is now president of the City Mission, and she is assisted by

Mrs. Bagby, Mrs. J. B. Pace, Mrs. Thomas Evans, Miss Horne and other vice-presidents. Mrs. John Addison is secretary, Mrs. John H. Claiborne treasurer, and Mrs. Bettle Ellyson and Mrs. P. Lyndham coal committee, and Mrs. R. Colston and Mrs. F. Martin purchasing The Mission has sixty-five regular district visitors, who untiringly work from one end of the city to the other. The most perfect system prevails, and the city is divided into a number of districts, each with its committee of visitors.

The first assurance a donor to charity desires is to know that whatever he gives is well and honestly applied.

The primary rule of the City Mission is to never dispense charity until the person has been visited and his condition ascertained. Last year 1,200 persons were helped. The cash donations received amounted to $1,175. This, with liberal donations of groceries and clothing from erchants and others, was the means of alleviating this large amount of suf-Other charities have entertainments of various kinds for raising money, but it has been the policy of the City Mission since the days of Mrs. Patton to look only to voluntary contributions for its support. The treasury is now very much depleted, and the amount of suffering so great that The Times is asked to present their cause to the public.

The Mission has a list of regular subscribers, who recognize it as the best means through which to dispense their charity, but with the organization of various other institutions these contributions have in many cases been divided, and their resources thus curtailed. liberal donations of provisions and clothing are also a great help.

Mrs. Colston speaks in the most com-plimentary way of the liberality of the lewish merchants of this city, naming one firm who had given as high as $150 in dry goods per year. The first contribution of the season was a check from a well-known Hebrew citizen for $20.

It is proper here to state that the late Dr. Booth was always a warm friend of the City Mission, and in the year 1880 tendered the ladies, free of rent, the house No. 196 north Fourteenth street, to be used by them for the benefit of the poor. At his death he requested in his will that the use of this house should be was practicable. The request the charitable father has contined to the een most rigidly carried out to this time by his son, Dr. E. G. Booth, of Carter's Grove, who, like his lamented father, is a model of Christian charity and benevo-

A matron is employed at the Mission rooms, who distributes rations to the poor on orders from the district visitors, or when for coal, signed by the chairman of the coal committee and countersigned by the visitors and the person benefited. A sewing school is also conducted here by ten lady teachers, who instruct sixty-five girls. This is under the management

Mrs. George Gifford. A prayer meeting is held there every Friday morning, conducted by the ladies, which is attended by the lame, the halt

The rations issued to sick persons consist of a half pound of sugar, two ounces of tea, one-half pound of rice and one-half pounds of crackers. There is given one ration daily to each sick person found in a family. The City Mission is an excellent protection against imposters, and it is not infrequently the case that charitably disposed citizens inquire of the Mission as to the needs of persons who have asked them for help. They at once dispatch a member of the visiting committee to make inquiry, and often have to report that the parties are dissolute and unde-The rescue of children from horrible associations and the finding of homes for them where they may grow up in a tter atmosphere is another branch of

The City Mission is a practical charity, putting its limited means where it will do the most good. Those who desire to do a good work and are doubtful of the best means of accomplishing it will find safe and sure method through the hands of the City Mission.

Money, clothing and provisions can all be made useful. Donations sent to Mrs. Bagby, at the Auditor's office, in the building, or left at The Times office will be promptly turned over to the treasurer of the City Mission.

THE VIRGINIA MILITIA.

The Trip to Chicago Orders for the Cavalry-War Scenes.

Colonel W. H. Boykin, commandant of the famous Fifth Maryland regiment at Baltimore, was in Richmond a few days ago, and held a consultation with Colo-nel Henry C. Jones, of the First Virginia

Colonel Boykin is desirous of having a brigade at the World's Fair composed of his regiment, the Second North Carolina, commanded by Colonel Wiley Jones; the Fourth Virginia, commanded by Colonel

C. A. Nash, and the First Virginia, commanded by Colonel Jones.

He consulted Colonel Jones in reference to the matter, and Richmond's colonel was greatly pleased with the scheme. He also expressed the opinion that the plan was perfectly feasible, provided the Fourth regiment and the North Carolinians have decided to go to Chicago.

I saw Colonel Jones yesterday evening.

I saw Colonel Jones yesterday evening, and he was enthusiastic over the pro-posed trip, and stated that, with his present knowledge, there was excellent assurances that the four regiments will sion of the Lee unveiling. The Baltimere soldiers have since waited for an opportunity to return the courtesies they received from their Richcourtesies they received from their Richmond friends, and during the proposed trip they would do so. Nothing could be more pleasant, think both Colonel Boykin and Colonel Jones.

Colonel William F. Wickham, through his adjutant, Captain William R. Pizzini, has issued orders for the Stuart Harse Guards, Ashby Light Horse and Chesterfield troops to report to Major H. M. field troops to report to Major H. M. MASONS OF VIRGINIA.

THE ANNUAL COMMUNICATION OF THE GRAND LODGE.

The Brethren Will Assemble in the Temple Next Tuesday and Do Such Work as is the Duty of the Craft.

The one-hundred-and-fifteenth commucation of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Masons of Virginia will assemble at the handsome new Masonic Temple Tuesday, December 6th, at 6 o'clock P. M. A brief sketch of the history of this venerable body will be read with interest on the eve of its meeting.

The first lodge of Ancient York Masons chartered by Virginia was in 1733, by the name of the Royal Exchange Lodge, No.

172, in the village of Norfolk.

The second lodge was chartered by the Grand Lodge of Scotland for Port Royal, Caroline county, Va., by the mother name of Kilwinning Cross, in 1755.

The third was chartered by the same for Ptersburg, Va., by the name of Blandford Lodge, No. 83, in 1707. The fourth was chartered by R. W. G. Ledge, of Massachusetts, for Fredericksburg, Va., on the 21st of July, 1758. This lodge, having been working under a dispensation for some time previous. The fifth was chartered by the Grand Lodge of England for Hampton, November 6, 1773, by the name of St. Tammany, and the same day by the same No. 6 was chartered for Williamsburg, Va., by the name of Williamsburg.

The seventh was chartered by the same for Gloucester, on November 6, 1773, by the name of Botetourt. The eighth was chartered by the Grand Lodge of Scotland for Cabin Point, April

5, 1775, by the name of Cabin Point Royal These were the oldest lodges, and the work of organization of them went on steadily after these. There were many traveling military lodges up to and during the Revolutionary

The great paucity of Masonic records, the chariness of writing too much which characterized the older Masons, and the fact that the British burned so many towns and buildings during the war, deprived posterity of valuable documents which might throw light on this interesting period. 6, 1777, a number of Masons met at Williamsburg, representing five out of the eight lodges then in Virginia.

They addressed their brethren throughout the world, declaring why they severed their allegiance from all foreign Masonic governments and their intention to constitute a Grand Lodge of Virginia. Laws and regulations were drawn up and a verbal ritual was sanctioned at an adjourned meeting of the convention Octo-At the first meeting of this convention they presented the name of Brother George Washington to be the first grand master of Masons for Virginia.

He declined the honor because he had never been master of a chartered lodge. and because his time was then taken up by his duties in the field.

In Fredericksburg Lodge, No. 4, the records show that "George Washington was made apprentice November 4, 1752;" and again "George Washington was Passed Fellow Craft, March 3, 1753;" and "George Washington was raised Master Mason August 4, 1753."
The decision of Washington becoming known, the Grand Lodge at the next meeting elected Worshipful Brother John Elair, P. M. of Williamsburg Lodge, No. 6, as the first M. W. Grand Master of These have continued, with modifications, to the present time. The ritual has undergone great changes. After the close of the Revolution Masonic work went on steadily and surely. There was, of course, great interruption during the late war between the States to the work, and meetings of lodges, as Virginia was the scene of so much flict, and took such prominent part in that great struggle of the South.

Space does not permit the names of the prominent Virginians who have been proud to call themselves Masons. Nowhere in the State or in the Union are the beautifully impressive Masonic degrees conferred with more dignity or teachings more fully exemplified and lived up to than in Richmond Times presents below a list of the grand masters of Virginia from the organization of the Grand Lodge, in 1778, to the present grand master, W. H. Pleas-

The Equitable League. At a regular meeting of Marshail Court, No. 9, Equitable League of America, held December the 1st at Ellett's Hall Mr. F. S. Jones, who had just returned from attending a special meeting of the Supreme Court of the Equitable League, held in the city of Baltimore, November 29th, reported that the supreme of ficers were very enthusiastic over the victory recently achieved in the suit against the order for a receiver. Brother Jones reported that the supreme officers would visit the city of Richmond on December 16th and address a public mass-meeting to be held at that time.

Chamber of Commerce.

The work on the new Chamber of Commerce building is progressing steadily, and the roof will be put on the latter part of January if the weather remains favorable The building committee have not yet de-cided whether they will provide for fireproof floors, but it is very probable that this will be done. Secretary Dunlop has already received a number of applications for certain space in the building, but no agreements have yet been made, for the reason that the rate of rent has not yet been determined. The building will be seven stories high.
